TO CHANGE SITE.*Location of County Sanitarium Will Be Decided Today.

Believing that the suitable site for a tuberculosis sanitarium is not on the site the poor directors have asked the county commissioners to meet with them this morning with a view of changing the site first selected. Although no complaints have been made it is thought the persons who reside near the county home would offer objections to the sanitarium being constructed along the site and for that reason there will probably be a change from the original site.

The commissioners and the poor directors will choose a new place for the building this morning and the work will start at once. The work will be rushed to completion as there are patients at the county home who will be placed in the institution as soon as it is completed. The regular monthly meeting of the poor board will also be held at the county home today.

STRIKE LEADERS CLAIM
DYNAMITE WAS A PLANT*They Declare Detectives Employed by Mill Owners Placed the Explosives.

United Press Telegram.
LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 28.—That the dynamite reported from Philadelphia as being found under cars in a train of goods made by the American Woollen Company was merely a charge plant, was the statement of strike leaders here today.

They suggested the probability was that if the dynamite actually was found, local detectives had tied it to the cars because "they had to get rid of it."

"The only dynamite so far located here," said strike leader William D. Haywood today, "was that planted by the detectives employed by the mill owners. Proof of that plant, produced in court, resulted in the holding of Commissioner of Schools Egan for trial on a charge of bringing it here to discredit our cause."

"We have the strike won," Haywood added. "We have gained the moral victory in the minds of the people of the United States that treat us as material victory. We know that it is not child schedule 12, it is in danger at Washington and it realizes that the people of the United States are aroused and will end the Russian tactics practiced here."

No action will be taken as the mother lies in a critical condition in the stricken home.

GOVERNMENT FEARS
STRIKE INEVITABLE*British Cabinet Does Not Disguise Its Apprehension Today.*QUICK ACTION IS NECESSARY*Unless Wage Advance Is Agreed to the Men Will Walk Out at Midnight.
Miners Not Satisfied With Only
Promise of Remedial Legislation.

United Press Telegram.
LONDON, Eng., Feb. 28.—Despite the optimistic attitude assumed for public consumption, no effort was made today by the British cabinet to disguise its apprehension of the coal miners' strike situation.

A special cabinet meeting began shortly before noon today at which the entire matter was to be gone over, and, if possible, a final plan was to be adopted to end the strike after its inception.

The general strike order goes into effect at 12 o'clock tonight and unless countermanded, every union miner in the United Kingdom will throw down his tools.

The union officials sent word to Premier Asquith that no terms would be acceptable unless a minimum wage scale was fixed for each district, so far as the government's promise that such a scale would be guaranteed by a law to be enacted was concerned, the Premier was told that this would be all right, but the men would strike until the legislation became a reality. The government was busy today trying to persuade the operators to accept the inevitable.

Complete legislation by Parliament is now the last hope of officials to settle the big coal miners' strike which up to late this afternoon had already cost more than 200,000 men, and was expected to affect more than a million men by midnight. The threat of mines throughout the south is general. Many of the men quit ahead of time and the remainder stand at work only until the notices to their employers were out. The notices are compulsory under the law.

Today the meetings of the strike committee and the employers proved futile. Each side stood stubbornly by its position. The representatives of the men explained that they had no choice, that the rank and file of the strikers had demanded a minimum wage scale and had voted to strike to enforce it.

Meanwhile the garrisons in every fort and post throughout the country are in readiness for instant use. Troops will not be called out unless it is absolutely necessary.

WEST VIRGINIA REPUBLICANS
TAKE UP CAMPAIGN MATTERS*Important Conference Gathers Today
With Confidence of Party Victory.

Special to The Courier.
PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 28.—Republican leaders representing nearly all of the counties of West Virginia assembled in conference here today to discuss the course to be followed in the coming national and State campaigns. So far as the State ticket this year is concerned the party leaders feel that an energetic campaign will result in a Republican victory, notwithstanding the confidence felt by most of the Democrats that they are going to sweep the State and add to the advantage they gained in the election of a legislature and four out of the five representatives in 1910.

Considerable uncertainty appears to surround the attitude of the Republicans in regard to the presidential nomination. Until the past few weeks it was generally supposed that little or no opposition would develop, and that the West Virginia delegation would cast its votes for the renomination of President Taft as a matter of course. The La Follette candidacy, even when at its floodtide, appeared to make little impression upon the Republicans of this State. Knoxville, however, has always had many admirers and supporters in West Virginia and it is reported that today's conference was called with a view to crystallizing the Roosevelt sentiment.

RIVAL REPUBLICANS FIGHT
IN MISSOURI CONVENTION*Roosevelt Delegates Arrange to Meet in the Street When Doors Are Barred.

United Press Telegram.
EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Feb. 28.—The first test of strength between the Taft and Roosevelt factions in Missouri today developed in the hottest political fight this state has ever seen. When they found that the doors to the hall in which the Third Congressional District convention were locked to all except delegates that had been seated by the Congressional committee the Roosevelt delegates rigged up a platform and prepared to hold a convention in the street.

The opening of the recognized convention was delayed until this afternoon because of the number of complaints. The Roosevelt delegates moved to the rear of the hall and started their convention. S. P. Davidson was named temporary chairman of the Taft convention and Ash W. Butler of the Roosevelt convention.

He said he had started for home last night and got drunk with friends. He was given 48 hours.

George McGilop of Thompson was given 72 hours for being drunk and disorderly. One drunk patted in last night was sleeping peacefully and the officers did not disturb him.

Plans for reducing the size of the proposed fire house on Arch street were taken up at last night's meeting of the Building Committee of Council. Owing to the failure to notify Manager A. M. According to the plans of the proposed fire house on Arch street were taken up at last night's meeting of the Building Committee of Council. Owing to the failure to notify Manager A. M. Haines of the Connellsville Construction Company, the holders of the contract, nothing definite could be done. Another meeting of the committee will be held either Thursday or Friday.

This is the first action taken by the committee since the equity suit was filed a few days ago. Nothing has been done by the company on the new plans. They will probably be started following the meeting the latter part of this week. Manager A. M. Haines of the Connellsville Construction Company said this morning that he had not been notified of the meeting last night. He said he would be on hand at the next meeting.

IS SPRING HERE? YES.
ALL BUT WARM WEATHER*All Signs of Season Have Appeared, Robins, Mockers, Titmice and Roller Skates All on the Job.

Is spring here? Ask the weather man. Although the season will not be officially ushered in until the 21st of next month, spring is here according to the small boy's calculations. Everything is ripe for spring except the weather and that is cold enough to raise thought of spring away.

Following announcements that robins had been seen in Scottsdale, South Connellsville, Dawson and other places, the small boy has been rushing the season. The city of "first comings" was the first one raised. That was followed closely by bringing out other skates from hidden corners. Last night the small boy gave Old King Winter an awful fight by appearing on skis. This is the last word. What will come next is a matter of conjecture.

STORK LEAVES BABIES IN BUNCHES AT BROADFORD*At the Sellenberger Home Two Boys and a Girl Arrive Simul-

There is no race suicide at Broad Ford. Despite the handicap placed upon that community by last night's locality known as Dry Hill upon its outskirts, the community is neither as dry nor as barren as circumstances might indicate.

The stork paid a visit to Broad Ford yesterday. He stopped at the home of John Sellenberger and left triplets. Three babies, two boys and a girl, arrived simultaneously. It was reported that both the mother and her three children are doing nicely. The youngsters are healthy, sturdy infants. This makes five children in the Sellenberger family. The other two came singly.

STEEL EMPLOYEES BUY STOCK.*Profit-Sharing Plan of 1912 Breaks
All Records.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Under the profit sharing plan of 1912 the employees of the United States Steel Corporation have established a new high record in subscriptions for the company and preferred share. More stock has been subscribed for than in any year since the plan became operative. This is regarded as an indication that the employees have no last confidence in the securities of their company, notwithstanding suits, investigations and political attacks.

Under the profit-sharing plan of 1912, the employees were given the privilege of subscribing to 25,000 shares of common at $65 and preferred at $150. The 25,000 shares were heavily oversubscribed, but it is believed that all the demands will be satisfied.

Women

From Forty-Five to Fifty Are Much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The "change of life" is a most critical period in a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

When her system is in a deranged condition, she may be predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of some organ. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inequitude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared to meet the needs of women's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

Mrs. Estella Gillispie

ONE CASE OUT OF MANY TO PROVE OUR CLAIMS.

St. Anne, Ill.—"I was passing through the change of life and I was a perfect wreck from female troubles. I had a displacement and bearing down pains, weak fainting spells, dizziness, then numb and cold feelings. Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen. I was irregular and had so much backache and headache, was nervous, irritable and despondent. Sometimes my appetite was good, but more often it was not. My kidneys troubled me at times and I could walk only a short distance.

"I saw your advertisement in a paper and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I was helped from the first. At the end of two months the swelling had gone down, I was relieved of pain, and could walk with ease. I continued with the medicine and now I do almost all my household work. The medicine has saved me from the grave and I am willing for you to publish anything I write to you, for the good of others."—Mrs. ESTELLA GILLISPIE, R.F.D. No. 4, Box 34, St. Anne, Illinois.

What the Reduction in Pig Iron Tariff Will Cost the American Workingman

The principal sufferer from reckless reduction on tariff duties on American manufacturers will be the workingman and the merchants who depend upon his ability to buy to remain in business.

This is plainly shown by figures gathered by The Pittsburgh Gazette Times in regard to the labor cost in producing only one basic article in the metals schedule which the Democrats propose in the Underwood bill to reduce to eight per cent duty, namely, pig iron.

Nor would the loss of work and wages be confined to the men actually employed in the production of the iron from the ore.

Miners, quarrymen, railroaders, steamship and dock hands, coke makers and others would be direct losers, while tool-makers, builders, office men and others would be indirectly affected, the demand for their labor being lessened to a marked degree.

The duty on pig iron imported from foreign countries is now $1 a ton. That rate does not afford protection to American manufacturers and workmen, as is proved by the fact that the foreigners have captured the Pacific coast market of the United States, and are fast increasing the amount of pig iron laid down from abroad at Atlantic coast ports. With a less duty on pig iron, it is certain several more millions of tons of pig iron will be imported annually.

Every million tons of pig iron imported displaces an equal amount of pig iron that otherwise would be produced by the American furnaces.

Every million tons of pig iron imported means the loss of a whole year's work (a year of 365 days) to at least 3,800 American workmen. Two million tons imported would cost not less than 365 days' work to at least 7,600 American workmen. If 1,000,000 tons is imported any year because the Democrats have their way and reduce the already inadequate duty on pig iron, the loss to American workmen will be a full year's work to more than 15,000 men.

Third Term, Ambitions.

Colonel Roosevelt's new and strange political doctrines have been severely condemned in every political quarter. They have added no strength to his candidacy on the contrary, they have sensibly weakened it.

But there is excellent reason for thinking that Colonel Roosevelt never had the remotest chance of securing to himself the Third Term which he so emphatically put behind him in his earlier and more belated days when he was still the recipient of the White House. On the night of the Presidential election, November 8th, 1904, he voluntarily announced:

On the 4th of March next I shall have served three and a half years, and this three and a half years constitute my first term. The wise custom which limits the President to two terms regarding the substance and not the form, AND UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES WILL I BE A CANDIDATE FOR OR ACCEPT ANOTHER NOMINATION.

Three years later, he repeated this declaration with emphasis. He said: "I HAVE NOT CHANGED AND SHALL NOT CHANGE THAT DECISION THIS ANNOUNCEMENT."

Yet now he announces that he will be a candidate for President and tries to explain away his pre prior declarations by saying that he meant that he would not be a candidate for "a third consecutive term."

Colonel Roosevelt got a job as an editor when he left the White House, and it is presumed that he knew how to express himself clearly. We must assume, therefore, that he meant just what he said in his sweeping statements, and that if he had intended to mean that he would not be a candidate for a third consecutive term he would have stated his position in precise terms.

The only other President who ever sought a third term was General Grant, one of the Great Captains of the nation, whose personal popularity and military greatness then that of Colonel Roosevelt, and who was not handicapped by any previous declarations pledging himself not to be a candidate for President again. Yet General Grant failed to receive the Republican nomination, not because he lacked the confidence of the American people, but because of the deeply rooted national prejudice against our Presidents serving more than two terms.

The wisdom of the American idea is capable of striking proof close to home. The Mexican republic was ruled for many years by an autocrat, a Caudillo, who was elected under a Constitution which himself helped to make limiting the service of the President to a single term, but who had that restriction repealed and continued to have himself elected continuously for over a quarter of a century. Revolt finally ensued and he was driven out of the country. His successor is now harried by ineffectual revolutions in every quarter, and republican government in Mexico has become something of a farce.

It might easily become so here, if the wise rule laid down by Washington and faithfully observed by the Presidents throughout a century were to be abolished. The same ambition which now prompts Theodore Roosevelt to deny his pledge to the people might later remove his prejudices against additional consecutive terms were he chosen again, and give us the Mexican conditions under Diaz.

The Fayette county Good Roads Committee will tackle State Highway Commissioner Bigelow again. There's nothing like patience and persistence.

Actually the number of men whose means of livelihood would be taken away would be much greater since very few if any of the men employed in the several activities noted can or will work every day in the year.

The American production of pig iron last year was approximately 24,000,000 tons. To produce 1,000,000 tons in one year, the various steps employ men as follows, as shown by the cost sheets of one of the leading manufacturers:

Mining the required 2,000,000 tons of ore	1,400
Employed at blast furnaces producing 1,000,000 tons of pig iron	850
Producing 1,200,000 tons of coke required	500
Producing 500,000 tons of limestone required	400
Estimated, employed in transportation of the various commodities	600
Total	3,800

Estimating that each of these workmen would earn an average of $1,000 a year, if continuously employed, they would receive in wages a total of $3,800,000 for producing 1,000,000 tons of pig iron.

There is also to be considered the workingman's family. The United States Census Bureau gives an average of five persons to a family. Estimating upon this basis, 19,000 persons—men, women and children—would be sufferers if the production of this country were reduced 1,000,000 tons because foreign manufacturers had supplanted it.

The statistics on the number of men required to produce 1,000,000 tons of pig iron a year were given by a manufacturer whose facilities for production are of the most improved type. The number—3,800 men—would be the least required. The coal would be machine mined, the coke oven and blast furnaces of the greatest capacity, and the transportation facilities the best obtainable.

A Democratic Judge with Prohibition proclivities on the Somerset county bench created quite a boom in the business of remonstrating against the granting of licenses.

The expert accountant of the Steel Trust Inquiry reports having audited the Gary dinners and found them to have been in restraint of trade.

The Stanley Committee knows how to make testimony when it is needed.

The Uniontown Chamber of Commerce objects to a renewal of the borough lighting contract and promises to shed a great light upon this live municipal subject.

The Redstone township Road Supervisors are charged with being too fond of work. They tried to do it all themselves with the assistance of some of their relatives, the auditors aver.

Foreign war agents will soon find out that Fayette county is dangerous territory.

The employees of the Steel Corporation are reported to have subscribed for more stock this year than ever. They have faith in their works.

The B. & O. handles some Rough Riders, but the latter always have to pay extra.

The Fayette City fire is blamed on the river rats. Fayette City ought to organize an army of cats.

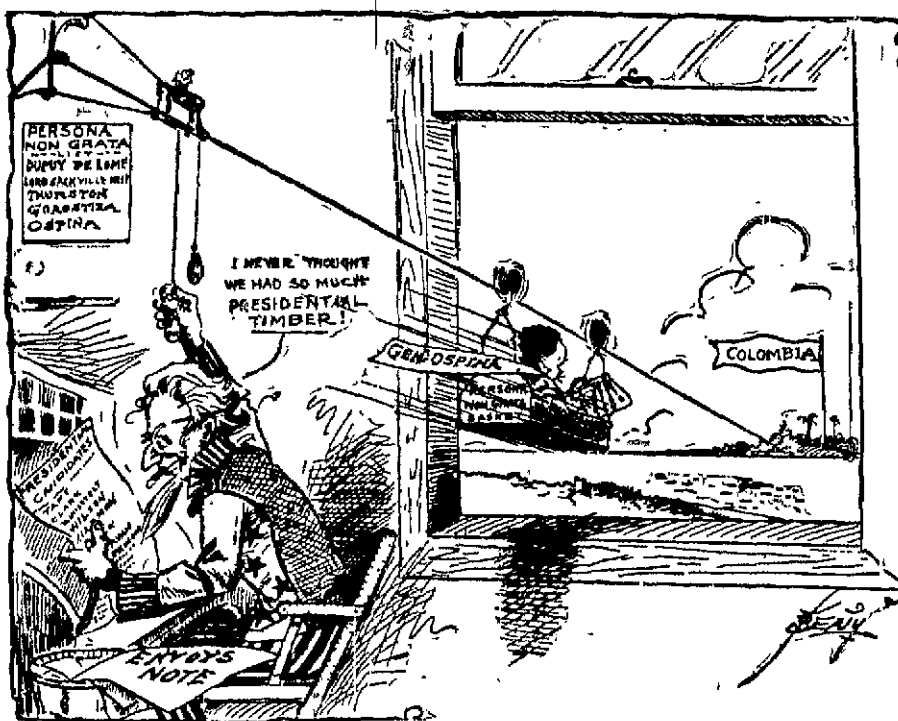

Vanderbilt Meeting.

These views are nearly all colored and are the best to be secured. The stereoscopic meeting for the boys and girls will take place again this evening, at 6.15. ## TERRIFIC RUNAWAY OVER AT SCOTSDALE

Heavy Clay Wagon Goes Full Speed Down Pittsburg Street.

PEOPLE NARROWLY ESCAPED

Physicians Hold Their Fifth Annual Banquet—Basketball Game, Tomorrow—Good Bowling on Locust Alley.

Other News Notes of the Hill Town.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Feb. 28.—With the main street full of vehicles and children coming from school, people held their breath in horror as two big draft horses pushed by a wagon and load of clay, both weighing over three tons, thundered down Pittsburg street from the top of the hill yesterday evening. The horses were going at a dead gallop, while on the seat of the wagon Bert Christner, a young man of slight build, guided the team past and turned them at Broadway north, where the team stopped.

The look on the wagon breaking on the steep Pittsburg street hill, just above High street, pushed the wagon on the horses and to escape they broke into a furious gallop. At 11 P. M. overhauled the wagon struck James Hendon's buggy and threw it and the horses across the pavement, narrowly escaping the curb. The team was guided between other teams and passed two automobiles, narrowly escaping grazing them, and struck the Adams express wagon further down street, not damaging it much.

At Broadway young Christner managed to make the dangerous turn and the wagon was stopped. One horse was calked on three feet and a gallon of blood reddened the pavement. The horse limped badly and showed signs of evident distress. The other horse was not hurt so much, apparently. Young Christner pluckily kept his seat in the wildest drive ever seen in Connellsville, and was injured. The wagon was not damaged. It belongs to C. J. Christner, of a mile west of town, who hauls clay to the pipe mill.

The fifth annual BANQUET of the Scottsdale physicians was a jolly affair that began at 7:30 and lasted until after midnight at the Kroner House last night. The rules of diet were carefully suspended and everyone enjoyed themselves to the utmost. All are reported to be doing nicely today. Dr. W. H. Foster and M. A. Nott were the joint toastmasters and everyone present was called to offer some opinion in consultation. The doctors were accompanied by their wives, with the exception of Edgar A. McComb, who is single and who was accompanied by his mother, and C. H. Poole, whose wife is away from home.

In the response to toast S. B. Gray spoke of "Looking Backward—Medicine of the Past," while A. W. Strickler had the opposite subject, "Looking Forward—The Medicine of the Future." C. H. Poole, the only one present without a lady, had the very appropriate sentiment of "The Ladies." Edgar McComb likewise had something exceedingly fitting, "Advantages of Married Life to a Physician." Vincent Pisula, married about five months ago, talked of "The Diet of a Physician." Dr. Strickler was quoted on for a couple of stories and did his system in very good style. N. E. Sibley operated on his hearers with a funny story that brought forth peals of laughter. O. I. Hoss told an absolutely sensible story, as directed. C. W. McKee sang "You Gotta Quit Kickin' My Dime Around," reading a letter from the Democracy of Joplin, Mo., commending the song and asking the singer to run for Vice President. L. T. Gilbert sang a very lovely solo, with a touching violin accompaniment by Doctor McKee. Barkull's orchestra furnished the ethical music of the evening.

A Little Diapepsin Will Promptly Regulate any Bad Stomach.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach. If you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, flatulency, a feeling of fullness after eating, nausea, indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), biliousness, heartburn, water brash, pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist, and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Should you at this moment be suffering from indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief within five minutes.

"Sho," Richard Koppel Cavendish, Earl of Lambeth, Sho, that was what he was! Sho!" and some transient feeling of awe stamped itself upon their small faces as they viewed the long and slender figure of their parent.

"These here titles go to the eldest son. He begins by being a viscount," continued Chills and Fover. "It was my great grandfather come over here from England. His name was Richard Koppel Cavendish, same as mine is. He lived back yonder on the Carolina coast and went to rattle tobacco. I've heard my grandfather tell how he'd heard folks say his father was always blatin' in his licker that he was a heap better than he seemed, and if people only knewed the truth about him they'd respect him no, and maybe treat him better. Well, sir, he married and fix a family; there was my grandfather and a parcel of girls—and that crop of children was the only decent crop he ever fix."

"My grandfather said he never knowed a man with the same aversion agin labor as his father had. Folks put it down to laziness, but they misjudged him, as come out later, yet he never let on."

"Then one day he got his hands on a paper that had come across in a ship from England. All at once, he lit on something in the paper, and he started up and let out a yell like he'd been shot. By gum, Jim the Earl of Lambeth! he says, and took out to the nearest tavern and got 'tilin' full. Afterward he showed 'em the paper and they seen with their own eyes where Richard Koppel Cavendish, Earl of Lambeth, had died in London. My great grandfather told 'em that was his uncle; that when he left home there was several cousins—but they'd up and died, so the title come to him. He never done a lick of work after that."

"I'm an orphan man of title now and it's been my dream to take Polly and the children and go back to Eng-land and see the king about my title. Don't you reckon he's got the cotton the Cavendishes has patterned out?" Mr. Yancy considered this likely. The furious shrieking of a steam-packet's whistle broke in upon them. "It's another of them hawgs, wantin' all the river!" said Mr. Cavendish, and fled to the steering car.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Judge Sees a Ghost. Charley Norton's good offices did not end when he had furnished Judge Price with a house, for Betty required of him that he should supply that gentleman with legal business as well.

Thus it happened that Judge Price, before he had been three days in Raleigh, received a civil note from Mr. Norton asking him to search the title to a certain timber tract held by one Joseph Quaid. The judge, powerfully excited, told Mahaffy he was being understood and appreciated.

The immediate result of Norton's communication had been to send the judge up the street to the court house. He would show his client that he could be punctual and painstaking. Entering the court house, he found himself in a narrow hall. He entered the county clerk's office. He was already known to this official, whose name was Saul, and he now greeted him.

"A little matter of business brings me here, sir," began the judge, with a swelling chest and mellow accents. "I am in some haste to look up a title for my client, Mr. Norton."

Mr. Saul scrambled up out of the depths of his chair and exerted himself in the judge's behalf. "This is what you want, sir. Better take the ledger to the window, the light is here ain't much?" He drew forward a chair as he spoke, and the judge, sending himself, began to polish his spectacles with great deliberation. "You've set on the bench, sir?" suggested Mr. Saul.

"In one of the eastern counties, but my inclination has never been toward the judiciary." He was turning the leaves of the ledger as he spoke. Suddenly the movement of his hand was arrested.

"Found it?" asked Mr. Saul. But the judge gave him no answer; he was staring down at the open pages of the book. "Found the entry?" repeated Mr. Saul.

"Eh—what's that? No—" he appeared to hesitate. "Who is this man Quillard?"

"He's the owner of a hundred-thousand-acre tract in this and abutting counties," said Mr. Saul.

"Who has charge of the land?" "Colonel Fontenay; he was old General Ware's law partner. I've heard it was the general who got this man Quillard to make the investment, but that was before my time."

The judge lapsed into silence. A step sounded in the narrow hall. An instant later the door was pushed open, and grateful for any interruption that would serve to take Mr. Saul's attention from himself, the judge abruptly turned his back on the clerk and began to examine the record before him. Insensibly, however, the cold, level tones of the voice that was addressing itself to Mr. Saul quickened the beat of his pulse, the throb of his heart, and struck back through the years to a day from which he reckoned time. He turned slowly, as if in dream.

What he saw was a man verging on sixty, lean and dark, with thin, shaven cheeks of a bluish cast above the jaw, and a strongly aquiline profile. Long, black locks swept the collar of his coat, while his tall, spare figure was habited in sleek bronzed cloth and spotless linen. For a moment the judge seemed to struggle with doubt, then his face went white and the book slipped from his fingers to the window ledge.

The stranger, his business concluded, swung about on his heel and quitted the office. Mr. Saul, bending above his desk, was making an entry in one of his ledgers. The judge shut his eyes. "Who was that man?" he asked thickly, resting a shaking hand on the clerk's arm.

"That?—Oh, that was Colonel Fontenay. I was just telling you about."

"Has he always lived here?" "No; he came into the county about ten years ago, and bought a place called 'The Onks.'"

"Has he a family?" The judge appeared to be having difficulty with his speech.

"Not that anybody knows of. Some say he's a widower, others again say he's an old bachelor; but he don't say nothing. The colonel's got his friends, to be sure, but he don't mix much with the real quality. One of his particular intimates is a gentleman by the name of Murrell."

The judge nodded.

"I've met him," he said briefly.

Acting on a sudden impulse, the judge muttered something about returning later, and hastily quitted the office.

In the hall the judge's steps dragged and his head was bowed. He was busy with his memories. Then passion shook him.

"Damn him—may God—for ever damn him!" he cried under his breath, in a hoarse whisper.

They finished supper, the dishes were cleared away and the candles lighted, when the judge produced a mysterious leather-covered case. This he opened, and Mahaffy and Hannibal saw that it held a handsome pair of dining glasses.

"Where did you get 'em, judge?" "Oh, ain't they beautiful?" cried Hannibal, circling about the table in his excitement.

"My dear lad, they were purchased only a few hours ago," said the judge quietly, as he began to load them.

Norton had ridden down to Belle Plain ostensibly to view certain of those improvements that went so far toward embellishing Tom Ware's estate.

"Do you think Belle Plain is ever going to look as it did, Charley?" as we remember it when we were children?" asked Betty.

"Why of course, it is, dear, you are doing wonders!"

Ware stalked toward them. Having dined with Betty as recently as the day before, he contented himself with a nod in her direction. His greeting to Norton was a more ambitious undertaking.

"I understand you've a new overseer?" "Then you understand wrong—Carrington's my guest," said Norton. "He's talking of putting in a crop for himself next season, so he's willing to help me make mine."

"Going to turn farmer, is he?" asked Ware.

"So he says," Norton was extremely disappointed when the planter manifested a disposition to play the host and returned to the house with them, where his presence was such a hardship that Norton shortly took his leave.

Issuing from the lane he turned his face in the direction of home. He was within two miles of Thicket Point when, passing a turn in the road, he found himself confronted by three men. One of them seized his horse by the bit. Norton had not even a riding-whip.

"Now, what do you wish to say to me?" he asked.

"We want your word that you'll keep away from Belle Plain."

"Well, you won't get it!" responded Norton.

In the same instant one of the men raised his hat and struck the young planter in the back of the neck. "You cur!" cried Norton, as he wheeled on him.

"Damn him—let him have it!"

It was mid-afternoon of the day following before Betty heard of the attack on Norton. She ordered her horse saddled and was soon out on the river road with a groom in her wake. Betty never drew rein until she reached Thicket Point. As she galloped into the yard Bruce Carrington came from the house.

put her from him almost roughly, and leaning against the trunk of a tree buried his face in his hands. Betty watched him for a moment in wretched silence.

"It's good-by—" he muttered. She went to him, and, as he bent above her, slipped her arms about his neck.

"Kiss me—" she breathed. He kissed her hair, her soft cheek, then their lips met.

Another hot September sun was beating upon the earth as Betty galloped down the lane and swung her horse's head in the direction of Raleigh. She would keep her promise to Charley and he should never know what his happiness had cost her.

Norton joined her before she had covered a third of the distance that separated the two plantations.

"We are to go to the church, Mr. Bowen will be there; I arranged with him last night; he will drive over with his wife and daughter, who will be our witnesses, dear."

Afterward Betty could remember standing before the church in the fierce morning light; she heard Mr. Bowen's voice, she heard Charley's voice, she heard another voice—her own, though she scarcely recognized it.

"I'll tie the horses, Betty," said Norton.

He had reached the edge of the oaks when from the silent depths of the denser woods came the sharp report of a rifle. The shock of the bullet sent the young fellow staggering back among the mossy and myrtle-covered graves.

For a moment no one grasped what had happened, only there was Norton who seemed to grope strangely among the graves. He had fallen now aware as the shadows deepened he was aware that Betty was coming swiftly toward him.

"I'm shot—" he said, speaking with difficulty.

"Charley—Charley—" she moaned, slipping her arms about him and gathering him to her breast.

He looked up into her face. "It's all over—" he said, "but I knew you could come to me—dear—" he added in a whisper.

She felt a shudder pass through him. He did not speak again.

To Be Continued.

At the Church Door. Tom found Betty at supper.

"You were over to see Norton, weren't you, Bet? How did you find him?"

"The doctor says he will soon be about again."

"Betty, I wish you wouldn't go there again—that's a good girl!" he said tactfully, and as he conceived it, affectionately. Betty glanced up quickly.

"Why, Tom, why shouldn't I go there?"

"It might set people gossiping. I reckon there's been pretty near enough talk about you and Charley Norton." The planter's tone was conciliatory in the extreme, he dared not risk a break by any open show of authority.

"You needn't distress yourself, Tom! I don't know that I shall go there again," said Betty indifferently.

At Thicket Point Charley Norton, greatly excited, hobbled into the library in search of Carrington. He found him reading by the open window.

"Look here, Bruce!" he cried. "It's settled; she's going to marry me! Can't you wish me joy?"

Carrington held out his hand. "You are not going to take any risks now, you have too much to live for," he said haltingly.

"No, I'm to keep away from Belle Plain," said Norton happily. "She insists on that. Everything is to be kept a secret until we are actually married; it's her wish."

"It's to be soon, then?" Carrington asked, still haltingly.

"Very soon."

There was a brief silence. Carrington, with face averted, looked from the window.

"I am going to stay here as long as you need me," he presently said. "Miss Mulroy asked me to, and then I am going back to the river, where I belong."

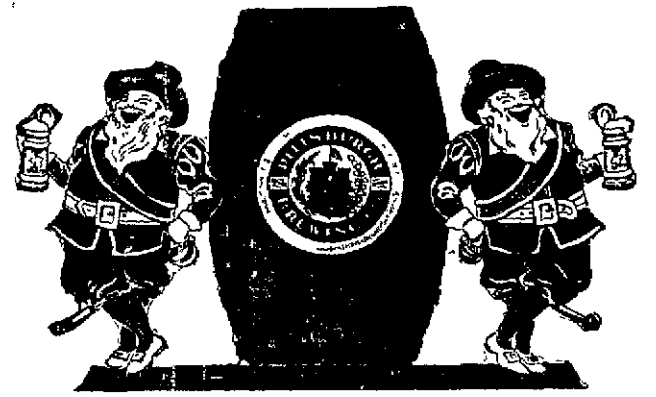

Betty ate supper with big Steve standing behind her chair and little Steve balancing himself first on one foot and then on the other near the door.

The long French windows, their curtains drawn, stood open. She wandered down to the terrace. There was the sound of a step on the path. Betty turned. It was Carrington who stood before her, his face haggard. Without a word he stepped to her side and took her hands rather roughly.

"What am I to do without you?" his voice was almost a whisper. "What is this thing you have done?" Betty's heart was beating with dull sickening throbs.

"If you had only come!" she moaned. "Now I am going to be married tomorrow. I am to meet him at the Spring Bank church at ten o'clock."

"How can I give you up?" he said, his voice hoarse with emotion. He

The KITCHEN CABINET

KITCHENNESS is contagious. The downy, soft, harmonious, trickles into the most serious of the household life. One truly affectionate soul in the family will exert a sweetening and harmonizing influence upon all its members.

HELPFUL HINTS.

It is the skill of the cook that converts the simple soup into a creation, the pinch of this or the pinch of that which, given at the right moment, of the right thing, that separates by a gapless chasm the commonplace from the novel. We all like originality and desire, above all things, to have our homes, tables and persons express a pleasing individuality.

We all like immaculate homes, free from dust, disorder and confusion, but when one pair of hands has to do all the choice must be made between the necessities and the things that can be slighted. We can do away with a few less frills and furbelows on our cooking and clothes, unnecessary scouring of things already clean, but we needs must look after the health of the family, to see that the food that they have served is both nourishing and good to look at; that our sinks and wash bowls are kept clean, that our dishes are washed with care and cleanliness. Other things can wait or take less time, but the things that affect the health and happiness are essentials and of course vary in different homes.

Tomatoes and Macaroni—Scald a pint of cream over hot water, add half a pound of sliced cheese and when it is melted add a fourth of a cup of butter and a dash of salt and paprika. Arrange around five baked tomatoes a half pound of cooked macaroni laid in a wreath. Pour over the cheese mixture, and serve.

Meat Balls—Put through the meat grinder sufficient cold meat to make a cupful, add a cup of cold cooked rice and season with salt and pepper. Beat one egg and add to it two table spoonfuls of milk. Pour about two table spoonfuls of this over the meat and rice to bind them together, if too dry, add a little more milk. Dip out a spoonful of the mixture, roll in crumbs, dip in egg and fry in just enough butter to keep them from burning.

BILLY KUMMER IS THE STAR COKER

Only 24 Years Old but He is Easily Best Player in Central League.

HOLDS SEVERAL HIGH MARKS

Record of 20 Successive Fouls Likely to Stand For Some Seasons to Come. Began His Basketball Career With the Butler Y. M. C. A. 12 Years Ago.

William Kummer, breaker of world's records and pillar of the Coker scoring machine, is 24 years old. He was born in Butler, Pa., June 2, 1888. Twelve of his 24 years have been spent playing basketball.

Billy holds several world's records "in the hollow of his hand." Some weeks ago he tossed 18 consecutive fouls. A short time later, not being satisfied with that, he tossed his string of consecutive fouls to 20. This is a mark that has never before been recognized in fast basketball company and is a mark that will stand for some time.

A brief review of Billy's past life is in order. In his twelfth year he began to play basketball with the Butler Y. M. C. A., one of the best junior organizations of that city. Butler was a pioneer in the game, standing out prominently with South Side and Homestead. One season sufficed to bring Billy's basketball capabilities to the fore. The Victorians signed him and he was with that team for 5 years, during which time they were the undisputed champions of Butler. The Butler Independents, one of the best minor league organizations in this end of the State, took him away from the Victorians. After one year's work as champion field goal and foul shooter, Kummer joined the Butler Central league team. That was the year the league started. The league made good and so did Billy. Butler, however, failed to stick and that year saw the end of that town's aspirations to be included in the Central league circuit.

The franchise was transferred to Greensburg and Kummer was signed, together with Harry Beggs, who had played a year with Billy at Butler. Kummer, however, followed Beggs' lead and refused to report. That year the National league, called by those within the fold of the Central an outlaw organization, was formed. Butler was included in the circuit and Kummer played with his home town.

The National league soon passed into memory. One month was all it could stand. Homestead, South Side, Braddock and other towns close to Pittsburgh were included in the circuit. Kummer stayed with the league until it blew up and then reported to Greensburg. He played forward with Steve White on the Greensburg team and when Steve was sold to Uniontown succeeded him in both his position as captain and foul shooter.

Greensburg lasted three years and then the franchise was transferred to Conneltsville. Kummer retained the captaincy of the team until about half the season was over, when he was relieved of his own request. Since that time has playing has materially improved. Kummer is the most closely guarded forward in the league. All of the blanket men are put in to guard him and he always gets away with more than his share of the work.

"Kummer's foul tossing wins for Conneltsville" has almost become a standing phrase like "The Cokers Win a Rough Game." Together with his foul tossing he combines a judicious amount of doubles, all calculated to bring the Cokers' score above par.

A few weeks ago Billy took a position as clerk at the Smith House and he may remain through the summer. If he does, there will be three Cokers in town this summer. Beggs and Ed Dark have both secured positions on the West Penn engineer corps.

Baseball Notes.
Coach Wilbert Robinson declares that Louis Drueke, of the Giants, will be one of the star pitchers of the season.

If the National Commission gives permission the Elito Grass league will place teams in Louisville and Covington, Ky.

Youngstown, now in the Central league, claims to have played to 112,000 persons in the Ohio-Pennsylvania league last season.

Manager Wallace of the St. Louis Browns, has engaged Lou Criger, the former big league catcher, to coach the young pitchers.

This season all American league teams will dress at the grounds which will save the clubs several thousand dollars in ticket bills.

Pitcher Blain Durbin, formerly with the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds, has signed with the Oakland Pacific Coast league team.

With Tony Hartzel acting as pilot, Toledo fans believe the Mud Hens will be there or near, in the American Association race.

With "Gabby" Street and Ed Sweeney working behind the plate, the New York Yankees are well fixed in the backstop department.

The Pittsburgh Club paid $51,000 for minor league players last fall and will have to pay $5,000 additional if the players are retained.

Jack Lewis, who will be given a trial at second base by the Boston Red Sox, lives in Pittsburgh, where he conducts an undertaking business.

Scout Dick Kinsella of the St. Louis Cardinals, will receive $5,000 for three months' work, and is said to be the highest priced man in baseball.

President Charlie Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn Club, considers Forbes Field at Pittsburgh, the model baseball yard, and will embody many of its features in his new plant.

"Uncle Cy" Young is training at Hot Springs, Ark., for his twenty-third year in big league baseball. Cy says his wing is still strong and he will show the youngsters how the trowsers are twisted.

Harry McInire, the spit-ball twirler was the first Cub to report in Chicago. Harry was decorated, with his sparklers and made the girls with diamond heels look like a lantern in a railroad shanty.

With the Boxers.
Al Dolmont and Tommy Shea have been matched to box in Waterbury, Conn., March 14.

Jimmy Jarvis, who won the 135-pound National amateur boxing championship in Boston last year, is now boxing professionally in New York.

Carl Morris and Jim Stewart will do it all over again, having been rematched for a 10-round bout to take place in Brooklyn, March 24.

Boxing and wrestling have got a strong hold in several of the large universities of the country, and tournaments between the students in the different classes are held frequently.

GLEE CLUB WELL SPOKEN OF Organization Which Appears Here Makes a Hit in First Concert.

The manager of the Washington & Jefferson College Club has written to the people who are in charge of the entertainment here telling of the big success of the club in its first concert. By reason of long custom of the club of the college, the first show is given in a compliment to the young ladies of the Washington Seminary, where the tunes are all tried out on the most critical and discerning audience of the entire season. The manager states that there is a double purpose in having the first show private for the Seminary in that they consider that if the boys are ever frightened they will be frightened there and that they will be so frightened that they will never be frightened again. The concert was given last week and the boys did exceedingly well even under such circumstances. "The Seroll" of Washington Seminary will say in the issue which appears shortly concerning the show: "The annual concert given at Washington Seminary by the Washington and Jefferson Glee and Mandolin Clubs on the evening of February 17th was one of the most enjoyable events of the school year. The Glee Club outdid itself, surpassing even its high standard of other years. Their selections were all attractive, the rendering of 'Winter Song' by Bullard and 'Honey, I want You Now' by Collins-Coo were unusually good. The mandolin club has been splendidly drilled and they play with a swing that is irresistible, and the added attractions of Mr. Garrett's solos were splendid. The quartet gave as an encore a song which has often been listened to as a serenade; but to judge by the enthusiastic reception it received, not too often."

The concert will no doubt be as well received here as at home.
